THE WASHINGTON CRITIC. Washington, D. C.

RICHARD H. SYLVESTER ..... Editor

WASHINGTON, JUNE 20, 1888.

THE LIBRARY BUILDING We would like to inquire of Mr Sawyer or any other member of Congress who disbelieves in large and costly public buildings in Washington. and considers their erection as tending to a mischievous concentration of wealth at the National Capital, whether any workingman, mechanic, carpenter, bricklayer, hodcarrier or any other kind of a wageearner, was ever known to raise similar objections to such expenditures? Is there a workingman in the District who does not know and feel that great works of improvement are mainstays and benefactions to labor, and that upon the energy and liberality with which such works are prosecuted all branches of business depend more or less for their prosperity?

It is strange that any member of Congress should take a different view, and one so entirely out of sympathy with the working classes.

Is it any "curse" to the city, socially, morally or otherwise, that costly edifices have been erected here for the accommodation of the various departments of the Government? Had it not been better if they had all been built originally with reference to future demands rather than present needs?

The General Postoffice building will have to be enlarged; the Interior Department is notoriously inadequate for the uses required of it; the National Museum has outgrown its limits and requires additional room, and even the Capitol-that splendid pile of architecture in which every citizen of the country, from highest lowest, takes a patriotic pride-has ed of insufficient size for the proper transaction of the business concentrating there.

The lowest estimates of the cost of this magnificent structure amount to nearly $20,000,000; yet since the original corner-stone was laid several times that sum has been expended on or about it in various ways.

Does anybody regret the money thus spent? Does not everybody grant that as a rule it has been well and wisely spent? Would it not have been equally as well and wise if when the building of the new wings was decided upon, the plans had been upon a much larger and more commodious

Congress that authorized it, the boast of an intelligent people, the admiration of the civilized world; and it would be in the nature of a great public calamity and disgrace were the work which has already been done to be abandoned and new plans adopted to do in a niggardly, inglorious way that which, not even meeting an immediate need, would have to be done over in a few years to keep up with its growing necessities.

The House should have done with its foolishness on this subject.

If there is fraud, or corruption, or needless extravagance anywhere in the work of construction, let it be ferreted out and stopped, but let the work itself go on as provided for in the pending bill.

Speaking or library and other publie buildings in Washington for future needs, we are constrained to remark that the Congressional head is sometimes quite as much out of proportion to what is required of it as anything we wot of.

CONGRESSMAN BURNETT has given Mrs. Cleveland a Jersey cow to add to her bovine collection. One or two more, and if Mr. Cleveland is not needed at the White House after next March he will be in a position to be identified with the business interests of the Capital as proprietor of the "Onk View Dairy."

THE NEW YORK Tribune says It is rumored that Colonel Lamont is going to resign his position next March and return to private life. There is only one condition upon which such a result may be predicated, and that is in prefound doubt.

ALTHOUGH GENERAL MAHONE OF Virginia, in the Chicago Convention yesterday, characterized one of Mr. Wise's statements in the following terse style, "It is as false as you are foul," and Mr. Wise replied that he would "put the proper stamp on that at the proper time," it is not likely that there will be any serious demand for blood on either side. It is possible that two men foolish enough to fall into such a public wrangle might be foolish enough to fight it out; but we are assured that both of these gentlemen, in spite of their political unhappiness, are disposed to think this is the best world they will ever know anything about, and want to stay in it as long as possible.

A STAR-SPANGLED Wisconsin patriot has knocked down a Republican in Chicago who used the American flag for a "wipe." This is in the nature of a boom for the red bandana, and will drive the Republican campaigners to some other device for working up enthuslasm.

ME. BLAINE is having more fon han any candidate before the Chicago

BUT WHEN THAT GLAD TIME COMES, black and white must march side by side in the broad unshine of safety and its down to peaceful slamber in the untroubled shadows of pro-tected homes.—[Judge Thurston, before the Thicago Convention yesterday.

All right, Judge, we'll do the marching, and you attend to the other part of it. We must draw the line some where.

IN HIS SPEECH at Chicago yesterday, Fred. Douglass urged, with all his characteristic vehemence and eloquence, that the bloody shirt be kept waving as long as there was any blood on it. In the light of contemporaneous history, which Perry Carson was making about the same time to the lasting and illustrious honor of Republican politics in the District of Columbia. we presume it was Editor Chase's shirt to which Mr. Douglass had reference.

GENERAL MAHONE, as a member of the Committee on Credentials, hasn't the power to sit on his own case, but he got himself into the committee all the same. It's queer politics, but politics are all queer nowadays.

THE COLUMBIA DEMOCRATIC CLUB at its meeting this evening will elect seven delegates to attend the Demoeratic Convention of clubs at Baltimore on the Fourth of July.

"AFTER BLAINE, WHO?" It looks now as though the man most likely to get after him would be Grover Cleve-

AS THE YEARS GO BY.

Babes and their mothers' luliaby; Children at their daily play; Maidens bearing their lovers sigh; Women brave in the world's way— Are of what we see and hear, dear, As the years go by: Hear, dear, As the years go by,

How tender is time, withal, How kind to the good and true; So gentle to me, withal, So gracious and sweet to you. This is what we see and hear, dear, As the years go by; Hear, doar, As the years go by.

Time's finger marks wrinkles are, Gray hairs its frost and decay; A young heart has kept you far From age marks and frost away. It is what we see and hear, dear, As the years go by; Hear, dear, As the years go by,

Time from your face stays sadness, Leaving the bright sunshine in: Risses your eyes in gladness, Leaving the sweet lovelight in. Oh, this we do see and hear, dear, As the years go by; As the years go by,

Sweet, let your birthdays come and go Put your hand and love in mine. on are young for loving so;
